CHPM2030 project is organising its final conference in the framework of the EuroWorkshop “Geology and the energy transition” on 23 May 2019 in Delft, the Netherlands. the aim of this EuroWorkshop is to provide insights into the energy transition and how it has affected geosciences.

The conference will discuss on the European policies that have been adopted to encourage the energy transition to gain an understanding of how these policies will provide directions for future developments: “Policy discussed by policymakers”, and present actual projects where geoscience plays a key role in the realisation of the energy transition: “Projects presented by geologists for geologists”.
