On Thursday 29th October, Eurometaux will hold a conference to debate how the European Union's Circular Economy Package can successfully promote our management of valuable resources, including non-ferrous metals.

The conference will evaluate how circular business models can be implemented across Europe's value chains, and identify how the forthcoming Circular Economy Package should be designed to overcome key challenges.

A keynote speech will provide a holistic overview of how circular management of resources can benefit European competitiveness. This will be followed by two panel discussions, on different challenges to be addressed through the Circular Economy Package.

Further details regarding the event programme to follow soon.
